Luckily they met an _____ who lent them her phone and gave them each €20 to buy some food. _____ lent them her phone to call the smuggler but he didn't pick up the phone. After the _____ left, they bought themselves some breads and drinks. Right then they saw an _____ man walking passed them. The decided to try borrowing his phone and call the smuggler again. The _____ man told them that he is currently staying at a community house for unemployment with other people. It was not possible for him to let them stay at his place. Before the _____ man left, he gave _____ his only €10 to put in the sim card

when they ran out of money. They put almost all their money in the phone to call the smuggler and called his family in Vietnam to tell about his situation here. wanted to wait in a café while waiting for the smuggler, but wanted to save their last €5 for later when the phone run out of money again. was about to call his family, the police appeared and took them back.

 told me that is a very poor province. The flood every year destroyed all their farms, took away their crops, and damaged their houses. Therefore, everyone there are extremely poor and want to change their lives by sending their children abroad to work. had given the smuggler their house deed in order to borrow €35,000 for to go to Europe. The interest they have to pay every month is €400, and if they don't pay back the money within 2 years, they will take the house from also borrowed money from the smugglers. They said that manicurists earn a lot more money in England than in other European countries, and that's the reason why they all would try everything to go to England. has been in Europe for 3 months and the interest is already €1200, thus, he is worried about his family in Vietnam and want to earn money as soon as possible.

They promised not to ask me for help to run away and begged me to get them a phone as soon as possible. aid he would ask the smuggler to transfer the money for the phone to my account plus extra money as a thank you if I do that for them. I said I don't want them to transfer money to my account, but the phone I will see.
